

NOTE: This suggested revision of the GNU General Public License was written by Matthew R. Harris, CEO of Embedix, Inc. This is NOT an official version of the GNU General Public License. It is for informational purposes only.

Suggested Revision of the
GNU GENERAL PUBLIC LICENSE
Version 3.0, May 2001

Copyright (C) 1989, 1991, 2001 Free Software Foundation, Inc.
59 Temple Place, Suite 330, Boston, MA 02111-1307 USA
www.gnu.org

This License applies to any Software licensed under the GNU General Public License.

You can use GNU GPL Software for any purpose. You can modify, copy and distribute GNU GPL Software, including derivatives, for commercial or non-commercial purposes.

In return, you must agree:

1. That if you create a derivative of GNU GPL Software and choose to distribute it, you will distribute it under the terms of this License. This obligation arises only if you choose to distribute the derivative – the mere fact that you have created a derivative does not give rise to any licensing obligations.
2. That if you distribute GNU GPL Software, you include two things: a copy of this license and a ready means of obtaining the source code for the Software.
3. That if you distribute a derivative of GNU GPL Software, you include a notice explaining the changes you made.
4. That if you distribute GNU GPL Software, including derivatives, you do not impose additional license conditions beyond those set forth in this License. You may grant additional rights, if you wish – such as warranty rights – but you may not impose restrictions beyond those set forth here.
5. That you will not remove copyright notices in the Software.
6. That unless someone grants you express warranty rights, in writing, the GNU GPL Software comes “as is,” with no warranties. This means no implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose or any warranty of non-infringement. You must pass this disclaimer on if you distribute GNU GPL Software, including derivatives.

7. That the copyright holders will not be liable for any of those types of damages known as indirect, special, consequential, or incidental related to the Software or this License, to the maximum extent the law permits. This limitation must also be passed on if you distribute GNU GPL Software, including derivatives.
8. That if you sue anyone over patents that you think may apply to the Software for a person's use or distribution of the Software, your license to the Software ends immediately and automatically.
9. That your rights under the License end immediately and automatically if you breach it in any way.

A few explanatory comments:

1. A derivative of a GNU GPL Program is a derivative work as defined under U.S. copyright law. That said, the following works do not constitute derivatives: an application program running in conjunction with an operating system licensed under the GNU GPL (just as an application program running in conjunction with Microsoft Windows is not a derivative of Windows); or a device driver running as a kernel loadable module in conjunction with an operating system licensed under the GNU GPL. These are meant as examples only – the list is not meant to be complete.
2. You can charge any price you like for GNU GPL Software, provided you are in compliance with this License.
3. We may, from time to time, update this License. Each time we do, we'll attach a new version number to it.